

USGBC TEXAS – West Texas Region

Continuing Education Program October Presentation

"WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT WELL BUILDING STANDARDS"

By Tricia Loe

Founder & Owner of Sustainable Concepts, LLC Dallas, Texas

Thursday October 27th, 2016 at 6:30 PM
UTEP Student Union Building Conference Center Lower Level

The WELL Building Standard is the world's first building standard that focuses on the health and well-being of the occupants. Humans spend about 90% of their time indoors, so it's essential that the built environment supports its human inhabitants. The WELL Building Standard is the culmination of seven years of research, in partnership with leading scientists, doctors, architects and wellness thought leaders.

During this presentation we will discuss:

- 1) How the WELL Building Standard supports occupant health*
- 2) What types of building owners might be interested in a WELL certified building, and*
- 3) Similarities and differences between the WELL Building Standard and other sustainable building standards such as LEED or the Living Building Challenge*

Students $5.00

USGBC and AIA Professional $20.00

In association with the UTEP USGBC Student Chapter and the EPCC Architecture Society